

But Tim really needs the help of honest friends at work to hold him to honesty. He meets with two pastors already weekly, but Tim could still hide sin at work because none of us are there. He wants and needs you and Williams, if you are willing, to constantly hold him accountable at work for perverse humor, swearing, flirting, or other selfishness you observe. While you, Williams, myself or the pastors are not the ones responsible for Tim's godly living, that is God and Tim alone, God does use us all to help Tim.

I and Tim, soon, are trusting you with this very personal information because we both believe you will not use it against us but rather take on the very kind role as accountability partner. I encourage you to smack him both verbally and physically if you see or hear anything out of line with God and godly husband and father behaviors. And I would not write this if I didn't love and treasure Tim far more than myself. I bless you for reading this and owe you even more if you will do anything in holding Tim accountable at work.

I hope your precious kids and Candace are doing well!

God bless!

Alyssa Barber